NATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION ACT (NEPA) ONLINE

A stand-alone library for National Environmental Protection Act (NEPA)-related documents has successfully been converted into a Web-based repository. Referred to as the Army NEPA Online, the repository allows Army, other federal agencies and federally sponsored personnel access to NEPA-related information. The US Army Environmental Center (USAEC) has a significant number of NEPA-related documents on this site.

NEPA Online contains examples of Environmental Assessments (EAs), Findings of No Significant Impact (FNSI), Environmental Impact Statements (EISs), Records of Decisions (RODs) and other NEPA program-related documents, as well as other services and federal agencies' NEPA documents.

The user-friendly system is password protected and allows users to browse or search the repository using several different methods including metadata searches, advanced searches, and full text searches. NEPA Online also allows users to download documents directly to their workstations, as well as upload documents for inclusion in the repository.

Once a document of interest has been located, the user may save a copy of it to a local or network computer. Any changes made to the document stored on the user's computer will not be reflected in the repository.

NEPA Online repository is accessible through Army Knowledge Online (AKO). To become an online user, contact the USAEC Help Desk at USAECHelpDesk@aec.apgea.army.mil or call (410) 436-1244. To register, provide your name, AKO user name, AKO e-mail address, phone number, and mailing address.
